ABORIGINAL STUDIES

ARCHIE ROACH

Geraldine Doogue talks to Australian singer-songwriter Archie Roach about his journey of survival and transformation.

One of the Stolen Generations, Archie Roach survived a turbulent upbringing to develop into a powerful voice for Indigenous Australians. More recently he's experienced the death of his soul-mate Ruby Hunter, and two life-threatening illnesses. All have hit him hard. But he's transcended these crises emerging with a renewed spirit, love and joy for life, and a new album featuring Gospel music for the first time.

ALZHEIMER'S/DEMENTIA CARE

PERSON-CENTERED DEMENTIA CARE: STORIES AND EXAMPLES

"Who is this person - without dementia? If we can tap into who this person is, we can help their adjustment, and the process that they go through." - from the DVD

Through hands-on stories and examples, this chaptered DVD shows the positive impact of person-centered care. When caregivers meet persons with dementia "where they are" and find creative and engaging ways to connect with each individual, based on their needs and preferences, life is better for both residents and staff.

The DVD includes the case study of Elaine, a resident who, for extended periods of time, attempts to leave the facility and go home. By pinpointing the importance of knowing the resident, it shows how her "exit-seeking" behavior is addressed and managed in the context of who she is and what she needs at that particular time.

The DVD also shows how to make life richer for the residents who have dementia by

- personalizing their dining experience
- encouraging use of remaining abilities
- engaging them in creative activities

AMERICAN STUDIES

AFTER TILLER

Directed by Martha Shane, Lane Wilson

Sheds a humanistic light on the heated abortion debate by going inside the lives of the last four doctors in America who openly provide third-trimester abortions.

Since the assassination of Dr. George Tiller in Kansas in May 2009, there are only four American doctors left who openly provide third-trimester abortions. AFTER TILLER paints a complex, compassionate portrait of these physicians--Dr. LeRoy Carhart, Dr. Warren Hern, Dr. Susan Robinson and Dr. Shelley Sella--who have become the new number-one targets of the anti-abortion movement, yet continue to risk their lives every day to do work that many believe is murder, but which they believe is profoundly important for their patients' lives.

The film weaves together revealing, in-depth interviews with the doctors with intimate verite scenes from their lives and inside their clinics, where they counsel and care for their anxious, vulnerable patients at an important crossroads in their lives. By sharing the moving stories of several of these patients, AFTER TILLER illuminates the experiences of women who seek late abortions and the reasons why they do so.

Reviews

RELEASED

By Philip Messina

Two-thirds of convicts released from prison return behind bars within three years. RELEASED presents the hopeful stories of four parolees who prove that the tide of recidivism can be reversed, if former prisoners are given the support they need to reenter society.

The four -- Vilma Ortiz Donovan, Kenneth Harrigan, Casimiro Torres and Angel Ramos -- spent over 70 years in prison combined. Released with no homes to go to or jobs for support, they ended up in a prisoner reentry facility in New York City known as "The Castle", run by former convicts and established by The Fortune Society. With the help of The Castle, all four overcame their traumatic personal histories and chronic criminal behavior to become exemplary citizens.

As part of their rehabilitation, they worked developing their life stories into a spoken word play that ran Off-Broadway for 14 months. In the play, each of them bares their souls in a painfully honest retelling of their personal stories -- from childhood and their crimes, to life in prison and the forces that helped them change. The film features scenes from the play being presented to prisoners and to a theater audience, along with other filmed scenes.

All four speak about how what ought to be the final redemptive chapter -- release from prison -- is often the hardest challenge of all. Dropped back into society with little or no preparation and support virtually insures a high failure rate. Having spent 30 years in prison, Angel Ramos asks: "How do I live like a normal human being when I have no idea what normal is?"

Their life-affirming stories of change provide an important model for reducing the rate of repeat offenders.

Reviews

- "Earnest, inspirational. Performing in front of two audiences, one in a theater, the other in a prison, all four speak of the forces that made them want to change." - New York Times
- "Compelling, heartfelt ... serves as an inspiration for current convicts and as a cautionary tale." - NYC Movie Guru
- "Released is a powerful look at the personal journey into, through and out of the criminal justice system. These narratives bring us face to face with the painful experiences of four individuals who despite the hardest of challenges found strength and resilience within themselves in the face of hopelessness. The film gives voice and humanity not just to their stories but to the thousands upon thousands of people, just like them, who have not yet been released, in every sense." - Women's Prison Association

COUNSELING AND PSYCHOTHERAPY THEORIES IN CONTEXT AND PRACTICE: SKILLS, STRATEGIES, AND TECHNIQUES

By John Sommers-Flanagan, Rita Sommers-Flanagan

Finally, we can see examples of the major psychotherapy theories all in one video! John and Rita Sommers-Flanagan present eleven of the best-known approaches to counseling and psychotherapy side-by-side, with real therapy sessions and extensive commentary covering theory, strategy, and effective techniques.

Students and instructors alike have been hard-pressed to find a single, easily digestible resource covering the major theoretical orientations of counseling and psychotherapy—until now. Join John and Rita Sommers-Flanagan as they showcase the key principles of eleven orientations and, along with four other engaging therapists, demonstrate their techniques with a diverse range of real clients.

Michael is renegotiating his relationships and formerly active lifestyle after a diagnosis of Crohn's disease; Peggy is warily considering new directions at an age when retirement plans are more common; Tesla, a dyslexic high school senior, seeks guidance on managing her college anxieties. You'll see three different clinicians lead them through person-centered, existential, and solution-focused therapy, respectively, in exchanges that highlight the orientation's theory and real-time application, leading each client to deeper insight and connection.

Pragmatic with careful attention to each session's details, the Sommers-Flanagans take you through a host of additional theories (including reality therapy, Gestalt, psychoanalytic/psychodynamic, and CBT) while illustrating techniques such as confrontation, the empty chair, presence, reflective listening, problem-solving, psychoeducation, and many more. If you want a video that explains it all in one place, Counseling and Psychotherapy Theories is a must-have in your library.

By watching this video, you will:

- Increase your theoretical knowledge of eleven counseling and psychotherapy approaches.
- Understand the therapeutic stance and strategies involved in each approach.
- Identify the primary clinical interventions of each approach and discover ways to adapt them to your own practice.

DEVELOPMENTAL ASPECTS OF GROUP COUNSELING: PROCESS, LEADERSHIP, AND SUPERVISION

By Rex Stockton

Gain new skills for leading psychotherapy groups in this video featuring seasoned group expert, Rex Stockton, supervising two students as they lead a 16-week group to deeper insight, connection, and personal engagement.

Whether you've led, observed or participated in therapeutic process groups, you've likely sensed that they have concrete, discernible phases. In this educational video, Dr. Rex Stockton explicitly demystifies these phases in a straightforward way, offering clear outlines interspersed with corresponding demonstrations of the developmental stages of short-term group therapy, co-facilitated by two of Stockton's supervisees.

This group takes a journey, indeed! The video is both ambitious and adventurous, and you'll feel gratified watching leaders Eddie and Kent take their insights from Stockton's supervision back to the group at each stage. The six group members (seamlessly role-played by Stockton's other counseling students) learn as they go, staying engaged amid emotional uncertainty and interpersonal rifts that threaten group cohesion.

You'll see the two leaders gain confidence over the course of the group, offering process statements that encourage thoughtful cross-communication, titrating the pace of individual contributions, and helping members translate insight into action. Nearing the group's end, each member is invited to resolve unfinished business while processing both the closure of the group and plans for integrating the work into their lives. At the group's close, all involved are genuinely moved by the experience.

By watching this video, you will:

- Understand the developmental stages and trajectory of short-term group counseling.
- Identify clinical signposts for making effective group interventions.

MONEY & LIFE

By Katie Teague

Money and Life is a compelling cinematic journey that examines the origins of money, how the role of money has changed over time, how it shapes our lives and world today, and the emerging movement to create new economic models that redefine our relationships with money.

The film presents a tapestry of expert interviews, narration, animated graphics and stories of individuals, communities, and small businesses who are seeking innovative ways to transform their relationship with money at the personal, local and global level. Experts include economists, authors, religious leaders, and a former JP Morgan executive.

Money and Life helps viewers understand the history and fundamentals of money in order to be more informed participants in the economic transformation happening around us.

Ultimately, the film asks, how can we move beyond being merely consumers, debtors and creditors, and create a more equitable and sustainable economy that meets the needs and realities of the 21st Century?

Among the experts and authors featured are:

- John Perkins, best-selling author of Confessions of an Economic Hitman
- Professor Jacob Needleman, author of Money and the Meaning of Life.
- Vicki Robin, co-author of Your Money or Your Life
- Bernard Lietaur, currency expert and author of The Future of Money
- John Fullerton, founder of Capital Institute and former JP Morgan managing director.
- Hazel Henderson, Futurist and author of Ethical Markets: Growing the Green Economy
- Lynne Twist of the Soul of Money Institute
- Charles Eisenstein, author of Sacred Economics

Reviews

- "An engrossing history of the very concept of currency, it raises some very salient points about our relationship with money and the treadmill we constantly run on to acquire it." - SF Weekly
- "An important film from a visionary filmmaker. This movie is ultimately a clarion call to individual and collective change so that all of us can thrive." - Matthew Wesley, The Wesley Group
- "Viewing Money & Life was a life-altering experience...a wake-up call. This film deserves to be widely seen." - Grady McGonagill, McGonagill Consulting

BUSINESS STUDIES AND ECONOMICS

FASHION VICTIMS

Australians love a bargain, but what's the real cost of cheap clothes from the sweat shops in Bangladesh? In 2013 more than a thousand people were killed when an eight storey building collapsed in the heart of Bangladesh's capital, Dhaka.

The collapse of Rana Plaza turned the world's attention to the shocking conditions workers in the country's clothing industry are forced to endure. In recent years, Australian companies have flooded into Bangladesh to take advantage of lax labour laws and the lowest wages in the world, paid to the predominantly young, female workers in the factories.

Reporter Sarah Ferguson sets out to find where the clothes we see in our major retail outlets are made. What efforts do Australian companies make to ensure the factories are safe and their workers earn a living wage? Australian retailers blocked our enquiries at every turn, refusing access to factories wherever we went. Working backwards from some of our best known retail outlets, Four Corners goes factory to factory showing workers and union organisers Australian labels until the factories are found. There the workers describe a miserable existence, long hours, pitiful pay and abuse if deadlines aren't met. In some of the worst cases there is even violence and threats of jail.

HACKED!

While debate rages over Australia's border security, there's growing evidence that the greatest threat to Australia's national security potentially comes from foreign computer hackers. Few in government or business will admit the full extent of the break-ins, with one expert calling it a "dirty little secret".

Reporter Andrew Fowler reveals that hackers, working from locations overseas, have targeted key Federal Government departments and major corporations in Australia. Their intention is to steal national security secrets and vital business information.

In one case, an Australian company that supplies secret communications equipment used by military across the globe had its computer network hacked. It appears the hackers accessed the system holding vital design information involving a military radio system. The break-in meant secure communications used by Australia's allies could be compromised.

A deafening silence surrounds this issue. Companies won't speak about the break-ins because they fear it will alarm clients and shareholders. Governments refuse to speak up because inevitably they will be asked, who is doing this? The answer is uncomfortable.

A number of people, including former government advisors in cyber security, claim the digital trail leads to China. Although it's unclear if the hackers are working for the Chinese Government, those same experts believe that any company doing significant business in China must assume it will be the target of corporate espionage.

IN GOOGLE WE TRUST

Every hour of every day, our digital interactions are being recorded and logged. We live in the age of 'big data', where seemingly mundane information about how we go about our lives has enormous value.

With the help of expert data trackers, we follow the information trail of an ordinary Australian family. We follow their data over a typical day, watching as it is surreptitiously recorded by government agencies and private organisations. Who gathers the information, what are they doing with it and what are your legal rights?

The internet has brought us conveniences once unimaginable. You can shop online, diagnose illnesses, and send 'selfies' whenever you want. But it isn't all one way traffic. Every time you use a search engine like Google, or access an 'app' on your smartphone, your activity is logged by companies around the world - many you've never even heard of.

That sometimes intensely personal data is either used or sold to make money.

Four Corners' investigation reveals that not only are we being tracked online by marketers but Australia's own government agencies are secretly monitoring our digital travels.

ON THE BRINK

Australia's economy - and unemployment rate - might be the envy of countries around the world, but it doesn't mean poverty and unemployment have been eradicated.

Welfare agencies say that many individuals and families are just one or two pay cheques away from financial disaster and homelessness. Worse still, with the mining boom coming off the boil, experts predict more people will find themselves out of work.

Reporter Geoff Thompson finds out what it's like to lose your job, your home and find yourself dependent on welfare. What he discovers is sobering. Ironically, while economic growth is generally good news, it's also pushed up the cost of living, making life for the unemployed even tougher. A Senate Inquiry report released this month concluded the current unemployment benefit is set too low. For many of the people Four Corners spoke to, accommodation absorbs most of their money, even with additional payments for rent assistance. Running a car and eating nutritious meals becomes close to an impossible dream. The result? Their world contracts and they can find themselves cut off from society.

Spending time with private charitable organisations, Four Corners profiles five people across Australia who are struggling to survive. One of them is John. A few months ago he lost his job. He became ill and was forced into hospital. Now he searches for work and barely survives on the Newstart allowance. John lives on one meal a day of two minute noodles, and his only chance for a good meal is to line up at a food kitchen.

Like so many people, John doesn't want sympathy, he simply wants support that allows him to survive while he looks for work - and he's not an isolated case. Those on the frontline of welfare delivery warn that, based on the figures they are seeing, the problems associated with unemployment will increase in the near future.

THREE MEN AND A BOAT

It's unusual for Landline in that this story is not about a farmer or a property but a boat, a wooden boat that changed the fortune of an entire town.

The Tacoma was Australia's first purpose-built tuna fishing vessel. It began catching bluefin off the coast of Port Lincoln in the early '50s and it transformed the fishing industry in this country forever.

CHILD DEVELOPMENT

FROM LULLABIES TO LITERACY

Here's a great way to help teachers and parents learn about emergent literacy - through discussions and activities based on video clips that capture the warmth of lullabies, the fun of word games, and Mister Rogers' visits with author-illustrator Eric Carle and folksinger Ella Jenkins. This 2-hour interactive workshop focuses on the kinds of experiences that help young children develop a positive attitude about literacy. It offers insight and strategies into emergent literacy in three areas: spoken language, reading and writing.

The overall goal is to give caregivers an appreciation for how much they influence emergent literacy when they build a caring, nurturing relationship -- and offer ordinary, everyday experiences that can encourage children to want to learn to read and write.

LET'S EXPLORE! ENCOURAGING CURIOSITY IN YOUNG CHILDREN

Children are naturally curious as they try to understand the world around them. Their wondering is the beginning of scientific thinking; but for many reasons, encouraging curiosity can be difficult for early childhood educators. This three-hour interactive workshop helps early childhood educators become more comfortable with children's questions and explorations and learn strategies for encouraging curiosity in both girls and boys.

Delightful and thought-provoking video clips of infants, toddlers and preschoolers stimulate discussion. Along with a hands-on activity that can be done with children, this workshop offers user-friendly follow-up ideas to nurture curiosity in ways that lay the foundation for children to become eager learners. Developed through a grant from the National Science Foundation.

ONE ON ONE: CONNECTING COPS & KIDS

One-on-One is a 4-part video-based training program to help law enforcement officers increase their effectiveness and safety by building trust with children and teenagers. Whether police officers are fighting crimes, building safer neighborhoods, or combating terrorism, their relationships with children are critically important. The way police interact with children in a neighborhood can have a significant impact on police effectiveness and safety, and on the stability of communities.

Through extraordinary documentary footage that captures actual police officers handling a variety of situations - from friendly contact to intense conflict, this training examines the critical links in the chain to develop trust and model responsible behavior. By giving officers tools to communicate and build relationships with children, One-on-One: Connecting Cops and Kids can improve officer safety and help achieve law enforcement goals.

DISEASE AND TREATMENT

CRACKING THE CODE

The Damiani family's story has been described as a breathtaking example of how medicine can be transformed by the determination of ordinary people.

Four years ago, Stephen and Sally Damiani's baby son Massimo succumbed to a mystery disease. In the space of a few weeks, the toddler lost the ability to eat and crawl. The prognosis was bleak and the cause mystifying.

Stephen Damiani, who has a background in construction economics and risk management, teamed up with a young geneticist to map the family's genome in an attempt to discover the cause of his son's illness.

In the process, his seemingly impossible quest for answers has made a discovery that's astonished the international medical community and has implications for us all.

GRACIOUS GIFT, A

This is a story Australians think they know: the gift of a donated organ that transforms the life of someone with a devastating illness. What we see here for the first time is the extraordinary journey families undergo whose loved ones are dying in hospital from a sudden, unexpected event.

Two brave families allowed Four Corners to follow them through the hours leading to their loved ones' death. It's in that acute moment they face the hardest question: will they consent to organ donation to help someone else live?

The vast majority of Australians say they support organ donation. But confronted with the question at a time of crisis, almost half of all families refuse consent for their relatives to donate. Hundreds of children and adults on waiting lists miss out on the life saving gift.

For Sarah Ferguson this is a personal story. For almost three years she watched her friend and colleague ABC radio presenter Mark Colvin as his health deteriorated waiting for a donated kidney. The waiting time for transplants in Australia is long and Sarah wanted to understand what happens in hospitals when the question is asked, will you consent to organ donation?

The program follows others waiting for a precious donation: Anthony, whose life is dominated by dialysis and Kelly, the 26-year-old surf-life saver from Tasmania who is dying from end-stage liver disease.

Without exception all the people in the program want Australians not just to think about organ donation, but to have the conversation with their families so their wishes can become a reality.

PUNCH DRUNK

Australians love a drink, and some see no problem at all with drinking to excess. But now doctors, police and paramedics have called "time", warning that alcohol-fuelled violence has reached crisis levels.

Read the statistics and it's hard to argue with these dire warnings. The latest figures show that each year as many as 70,000 people are involved in alcohol-related assaults. In all, it is estimated that alcohol-related violence costs the community $187 million each year. Four Corners also reveals there's a growing body of evidence that shows a link between binge drinking and brain damage.

While the overall incidence of alcohol-related violent crime varies in each state in Australia, one thing is clear: the violence associated with alcohol abuse is getting more extreme.

Reporter Janine Cohen tells the story of one young man who did nothing more than take his girlfriend out to a club. Without provocation he was attacked, his skull fractured and his life changed forever. The story of alcohol abuse didn't end there. His attacker, who'd consumed 10 cans of bourbon and cola, was arrested, found guilty and sentenced to six years jail. His family was devastated. Despite such occurrences, the Australian Hotels Association (AHA) argues that alcohol isn't the only cause of violence and its increasing intensity. The organisation claims that drugs are the real problem and that people must take more personal responsibility.

Out on the streets Four Corners found a rather different picture. Accompanying police on patrol, it soon became clear that alcohol and violence are close companions. The cameras captured the moment when police themselves are attacked, and go with the paramedics who are forced to clean up the carnage after violence flares. At the hospital emergency ward things are no better. Doctors and nurses are forced to tend to a constant stream of people who've become victims of alcohol-related violence.

GAS LEAK!

The coal seam gas industry promotes itself as a cleaner carbon-fuel alternative; but how do we know this is true? Until now much of the information used to back this claim has come from the industry itself.

The problem is this "cleaner-greener" claim doesn't always square with experience on the ground. Next on Four Corners reporter Matthew Carney talks to farmers who've seen rivers bubble with methane, their bore water polluted with chemicals, while the reserves of ground water on their property have dropped alarmingly.

He also looks at the latest research that suggests the coal seam gas industry might be a much bigger greenhouse gas emitter than previously thought.

But why weren't these problems picked up in the development approval process? The answer is simple: according to one insider, the approval process is significantly flawed. Four Corners reveals what really happened when two major companies applied to develop thousands of square kilometres of southern Queensland for coal seam gas. Using hundreds of pages of confidential documents, the program reveals that the companies didn't supply enough basic information for an informed decision to be made about environmental impacts. Despite this, various government agencies permitted the developments to go ahead, allowing the companies to submit key information at a later date. A decision which shocked some who were involved:

This same insider claims pressure was applied to the bureaucracy to fast track approval for coal seam gas development. This allegation would deeply concern many farmers who have seen their land used for coal seam gas sites and raises significant concerns about the future expansion of the industry across Australia.

WISDOM TO SURVIVE, THE: CLIMATE CHANGE, CAPITALISM & COMMUNITY

Directed by John Ankele & Anne Macksoud

Examines the challenges that climate change poses and discusses meaningful action that can be taken by individuals and communities.

THE WISDOM TO SURVIVE accepts the consensus of scientists that climate change has already arrived, and asks, what is keeping us from action? In discussions with thought leaders and activists, we explore how unlimited growth and greed are destroying the life support system of the planet, the social fabric of the society, and the lives of billions of people.

Will we have the wisdom to survive? The film features thought leaders and activists in the realms of science, economics and spirituality discussing how we can evolve and take action in the face of climate disruption. They urge us to open ourselves to the beauty that surrounds us and get to work on ensuring it thrives.

ECONOMICS, FINANCE, & GLOBAL BUSINESS

MONEY & LIFE

By Katie Teague

Money and Life is a compelling cinematic journey that examines the origins of money, how the role of money has changed over time, how it shapes our lives and world today, and the emerging movement to create new economic models that redefine our relationships with money.

The film presents a tapestry of expert interviews, narration, animated graphics and stories of individuals, communities, and small businesses who are seeking innovative ways to transform their relationship with money at the personal, local and global level. Experts include economists, authors, religious leaders, and a former JP Morgan executive.

Money and Life helps viewers understand the history and fundamentals of money in order to be more informed participants in the economic transformation happening around us.

Ultimately, the film asks, how can we move beyond being merely consumers, debtors and creditors, and create a more equitable and sustainable economy that meets the needs and realities of the 21st Century?

Among the experts and authors featured are:

- John Perkins, best-selling author of Confessions of an Economic Hitman
- Professor Jacob Needleman, author of Money and the Meaning of Life.
- Vicki Robin, co-author of Your Money or Your Life
- Bernard Lietaur, currency expert and author of The Future of Money
- John Fullerton, founder of Capital Institute and former JP Morgan managing director.
- Hazel Henderson, Futurist and author of Ethical Markets: Growing the Green Economy
- Lynne Twist of the Soul of Money Institute
- Charles Eisenstein, author of Sacred Economics

Reviews

- "An engrossing history of the very concept of currency, it raises some very salient points about our relationship with money and the treadmill we constantly run on to acquire it." - SF Weekly

- "An important film from a visionary filmmaker. This movie is ultimately a clarion call to individual and collective change so that all of us can thrive." - Matthew Wesley, The Wesley Group
- "Viewing Money & Life was a life-altering experience...a wake-up call. This film deserves to be widely seen." - Grady McGonagill, McConagill Consulting

EDUCATION

FREE THE MIND

By Phie Ambo

Free the Mind profiles the pioneering work of renowned psychologist Richard Davidson, who, by studying the practices of Tibetan monks and others, found that it is possible to rewire the brain through meditation and mental training exercises.

Named one of Time Magazine's 100 most influential people in 2006, Dr. Davidson has dedicated himself to applying this hopeful discovery to improve the lives of people throughout the world. He founded the Center for Investigating Healthy Minds at the University of Wisconsin to study whether and how contemplative traditions change our brains and can help people overcome mental trauma and live happier lives.

Filmed at the Center, Free the Mind follows three test subjects on an emotionally-charged journey through life-changing experiments overseen by Dr. Davidson that delve into the deepest recesses of the human mind.

Steve and Rich are American veterans who served in Iraq and Afghanistan and are tormented by painful wartime memories. Will is a five-year-old suffering from ADHD and severe anxiety whose parents are eager to find treatment options other than traditional medications. Can Dr. Davidson free these three from their troubled existences and help them lead happier lives?

The film explores the intersection between modern neuroscience and ancient contemplative practices, as well as deeper questions about the nature of consciousness and how it manifests in the brain and body. Animated segments vividly depict the effects on the brain of the techniques being employed, helping viewers understand the complex ideas involved.

Reviews

- "Free the Mind qualifies as a pioneering inquiry at the outermost boundaries of neuroscience. The film presents thoughtful, compassionate teachers as heroes while proving, yet again, that we've only just begun to unravel the mysteries of the human brain." - Seattle Times
- "Hopeful and inspiring...There's something healing about simply watching Free the Mind, Danish filmmaker Phie Ambo's gentle, compassionate documentary spotlighting the use of such drug-free options such as meditation and mindfulness to treat anxiety and trauma." - Los Angeles Times
- "Elegant...beautifully crafted...sheds light on the mysteries of the human mind. The film's style is a apt combination of hushed intimacy and gliding elegance." - Variety

GROWING UP GREEN

By Bob Gliner

Growing Up Green profiles a unique statewide, hands-on environmental education program in Michigan, the Great Lakes Stewardship Initiative. For the very first time, both rural and urban schools across the state are working to increase academic performance by involving students in local efforts to improve the environments they inhabit.

This coordinated statewide approach to "place-based education" presents a national model for increasing student engagement by making education more relevant, while also encouraging students to become lifelong stewards of the environment.

High school students in an interdisciplinary science and math class in Houghton developed ROV's (remotely operated vehicles) to use in underwater explorations looking for invasive species. Across the state in Alpena, elementary school students use similar ROV's to aid Fish and Game biologists in their research.

In Lansing and nearby Grand Rapids, elementary and high school students raise salmon in their classrooms, then restock local rivers, weaving science, math, history and art though their year-long curriculum. In Muskegon, elementary students plant a former dump site with non-invasive species, restoring a natural habitat, while learning valuable watershed lessons.

In Detroit's inner city, high school students renovate 800 houses with energy saving devices as part of their science and math program, while Detroit middle school students perform regular 'tire sweeps' of the neighborhood around their school, helping a local nonprofit in its recycling and poverty alleviation efforts. Professional development is offered through nine hubs to help teachers facilitate inquiry-based learning and problem-solving, and to sustain school-community partnerships.

EMOTIONALLY FOCUSED

EMOTIONALLY FOCUSED THERAPY WITH SAME-SEX COUPLES

By Sue Johnson

The therapeutic needs of same-sex couples are given some long-overdue attention in this masterful video with EFT originator Dr. Sue Johnson, who offers fresh hope to a gay and a lesbian couple using her signature framework for repairing the partners' emotional "dance."

The underlying assumption in Emotionally Focused Therapy, says expert couples therapist Dr. Sue Johnson, is that vulnerable emotions, emotion regulation strategies, and attachment needs and fears are universal. In this illuminating new video, Johnson applies her groundbreaking therapeutic framework to the relationship difficulties of two same-sex couples, one gay and one lesbian.

Tim and Andrew, along with Jamie and Kelly, have participated in a handful of EFT sessions to understand their seemingly deep-seated conflicts and salvage their partnerships—or to decide once and for all if that's even possible. In consultation with their respective therapists, Johnson enters the room for an extended session with each couple, where she masterfully helps deconstruct their relationship patterns, meticulously tracks each partner to reveal their core attachment messages, and employs direct communication tactics to guide them closer to the "safe haven" of a mutually satisfying bond. All this is done with a trusting working alliance and empathic attention to the issues same-sex couples face—which you'll learn more about by watching Johnson's unique panel discussion with three other EFT therapists.

If you're looking to increase your skill with same-sex couples or gain deeper insight into the EFT model for partners of any sexual orientation, you'll love this engaging and culturally important video.

By watching this video, you will:

- Understand how the core attachment orientation of EFT fits with same-sex couples.
- Learn to apply essential EFT interventions to these couples.
- Deepen your knowledge of the particular issues same-sex partners face, and ways to adapt EFT to address these issues.

ENVIRONMENT

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: FIRE AND ICE

Directed by Christopher McLeod

From the Gamo Highlands of Ethiopia to the Andes of Peru, indigenous highland communities battle threats to their forests, farms, and faith.

From Ethiopia to Peru, indigenous customs protect biodiversity on sacred lands under pressure from religious conflicts and climate change. In the Gamo Highlands of Ethiopia, scientists confirm the benefits of traditional stewardship even as elders witness the decline of spiritual practices that have long protected trees, meadows and mountains. Tensions with evangelical Christians over a sacred meadow erupt into a riot. In the Peruvian Andes, the Q'eros, on a pilgrimage to a revered glacier, are driven from their ritual site by intolerant Catholics. Q'eros potato farmers face a more ominous foe: global warming is melting glaciers, their water source. Andes farmers, scientists and visiting Ethiopians struggle to adapt indigenous agriculture to the changing climate.

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: ISLANDS OF SANCTUARY

Directed by Christopher McLeod

Aboriginal Australians and Native Hawaiians reclaim land from the government and the military, and resist the erosion of culture and environment.

Native Hawaiians and Aboriginal Australians resist threats to their sacred places in a growing international movement to defend human rights and protect the environment. In Australia's Northern Territory, Aboriginal clans maintain Indigenous Protected Areas and resist the destructive effects of a mining boom. In Hawai'i, indigenous ecological and spiritual practices are used to restore the sacred island of Kaho'olawe after 50 years of military use as a bombing range.

Featuring Patrick Dodson (Yawuru), Emmett Aluli and Davianna McGregor (Hawai'i), Winona LaDuke (Anishinaabe), Oren Lyons (Onondaga), Satish Kumar and Barry Lopez.

EXERCISE PRESCRIPTION

THERMOREGULATION AND EXERCISE

By Jack Ransone

Thermoregulation and Exercise reviews the basic factors that are involved in the regulation of the body's core temperature during exercise training. The DVD examines the process of the body trying to balance heat while being physical active, as well as points out several of the key internal body temperature measures indicate the baseline for the possibility of experiencing the onset of a thermo-related illness. The DVD also discusses several strategies involving thermoregulation, for maintaining health and performance.

Among the topics covered

- Evaporation
- Heat balance
- The hypothalamus and hyperthermia
- Losing a little weight means a lot
- Heat: fluid rehydration and acclimatization
- Cardiovascular exercise in the heat
- Monitoring fluid balance: practical issues
- Nutrition mistake
- Sodium

FINANCE, ACCOUNTING & TAXATION

ACCOUNTING FUNDAMENTALS: ACCOUNTING BASICS AND DEFINITIONS

What do GAAP and OCBOA mean? What are revenues, expenses, assets, and liabilities? What are the stages of the accounting cycle? This video answers those questions and many others as it introduces viewers to the process of accounting as illustrated by a cupcake shop and a medical clinic. Sections include: Importance of Accurate Accounting, Basic Accounting Terms, Financial Reporting, Income Statements, Balance Sheets: Assets, Balance Sheets: Liabilities and Owner Equity, and Statements of Cash Flows.

ACCOUNTING FUNDAMENTALS: MANAGING ASSETS AND PAYROLL

Assets and payroll are critical components of the accounting process and essential for any business to succeed. After watching this video, viewers will understand the managing of assets, which are resources owned by a company that help with its operations and can be converted to cash, and the managing of payroll—salaries, wages, bonuses and commissions, overtime pay, payroll taxes and costs, employer-paid benefits, and profit-sharing plans. Sections include: Tangible and Intangible Assets, Asset Accounts, Grouping Assets, Depreciation, Payroll Accounting, and The Matching Principle for Payroll Accounting. A graphic design firm and a software company serve as examples.

ACCOUNTING FUNDAMENTALS: MANAGING INVENTORY

Inventory can include products that a company makes and sells, products that it purchases and resells, and products that it sells on consignment. Through this video, viewers will learn how companies manage their goods as illustrated by a consignment shop, a large grocery store, a hardware store, a construction company, a chemical plant, a jewelry store, a gas station, and a boutique clothing store. Sections include: Types of Inventory, Inventory Assessment and Systems, Costing Methods, Costing Methods in Action, Specific Identification Method of Inventory Costing, Conservatism and Inventory, and Inventory Adjustments and Estimates.

GENERAL BIOLOGY

CELL BIOLOGY: STRUCTURE, FUNCTION, AND PROCESSES - CELL DIVISION AND GROWTH

The cell cycle is a series of developmental and growth events that chart the normal life of a cell. This program uses easy-to-follow animation to illustrate the growth phases of the cell cycle and the processes of mitosis and cytokinesis that follow. The distinct phases of mitosis—including prophase, metaphase, anaphase and telophase—are described in detail. The program also explains meiosis, a variation of mitosis involving the formation of gametes in two stages. Apoptosis, or programmed cell death, is also covered, including the effects of uncontrolled cell division (cancer).

CELL BIOLOGY: STRUCTURE, FUNCTION, AND PROCESSES - CELL METABOLISM AND RESPIRATION

All living organisms need energy to perform day-to-day tasks. Using straightforward, vibrant animation to anchor otherwise complex ideas, this program shows how that energy is created through the metabolic processes of catabolism, aerobic cellular respiration, and anabolism. Respiration is covered in depth, with detailed explanations of glycolysis, the Krebs cycle and the electron transport chain. Also covered is fermentation and anaerobic cellular respiration, and how cells help build large, complex molecules through the process of anabolism.

CELL BIOLOGY: STRUCTURE, FUNCTION, AND PROCESSES - CELL STRUCTURE AND FUNCTION

This program explores the basic structure of both animal and plant cells and the specific functions that different cell components serve. After an overview of a complete cell, individual segments dive in to detail each of the specific parts. Discrete, pedagogical segments cover: the plasma membrane, extracellular matrix, flagellum and cilia, the nucleus, nucleolus, nuclear envelope, cytosol and cytoplasm, the rough and smooth endoplasmic reticula, the golgi apparatus, ribosomes, lysosomes, vacuoles, peroxisome, and mitochondria. Where plant and animal cells different is made clear, and separate segments on structures unique to plants include the cell wall, plasmodesmata, and chloroplasts.

CELL BIOLOGY: STRUCTURE, FUNCTION, AND PROCESSES - STEM CELLS AND CELLULAR DIFFERENTIATION

That a tiny collection of cells can divide, multiply, and transform into the proper combination of lung cells, brain cells, bone, muscle, and more—eventually becoming a fully formed human being—is often referred to as the miracle of life. But at the cellular level, this is the story of stem cells, cellular differentiation, and gene expression. This program explores these topics, detailing the different types of stem cells (embryonic and adult), and when they leave the cell cycle to enter differentiation. Cell mutation, gene expression, and the process of epigenetics are also covered. Stem cell potency is also reviewed, as is the role and promise of stem cells in medical research, including the pros and cons of using embryonic versus adult-derived stem cells.

GLOBAL ISSUES

WISDOM TO SURVIVE, THE: CLIMATE CHANGE, CAPITALISM & COMMUNITY

Directed by John Ankele & Anne Macksoud

Examines the challenges that climate change poses and discusses meaningful action that can be taken by individuals and communities.

THE WISDOM TO SURVIVE accepts the consensus of scientists that climate change has already arrived, and asks, what is keeping us from action? In discussions with thought leaders and activists, we explore how unlimited growth and greed are destroying the life support system of the planet, the social fabric of the society, and the lives of billions of people.

Will we have the wisdom to survive? The film features thought leaders and activists in the realms of science, economics and spirituality discussing how we can evolve and take action in the face of climate disruption. They urge us to open ourselves to the beauty that surrounds us and get to work on ensuring it thrives.

GROUP THERAPY

DEVELOPMENTAL ASPECTS OF GROUP COUNSELING: PROCESS, LEADERSHIP, AND SUPERVISION

By Rex Stockton

Gain new skills for leading psychotherapy groups in this video featuring seasoned group expert, Rex Stockton, supervising two students as they lead a 16-week group to deeper insight, connection, and personal engagement.

Whether you've led, observed or participated in therapeutic process groups, you've likely sensed that they have concrete, discernible phases. In this educational video, Dr. Rex Stockton explicitly demystifies these phases in a straightforward way, offering clear outlines interspersed with corresponding demonstrations of the developmental stages of short-term group therapy, co-facilitated by two of Stockton's supervisees.

This group takes a journey, indeed! The video is both ambitious and adventurous, and you'll feel gratified watching leaders Eddie and Kent take their insights from Stockton's supervision back to the group at each stage. The six group members (seamlessly role-played by Stockton's other counseling students) learn as they go, staying engaged amid emotional uncertainty and interpersonal rifts that threaten group cohesion.

You'll see the two leaders gain confidence over the course of the group, offering process statements that encourage thoughtful cross-communication, titrating the pace of individual contributions, and helping members translate insight into action. Nearing the group's end, each member is invited to resolve unfinished business while processing both the closure of the group and plans for integrating the work into their lives. At the group's close, all involved are genuinely moved by the experience.

By watching this video, you will:

- Understand the developmental stages and trajectory of short-term group counseling.
- Identify clinical signposts for making effective group interventions.
- Learn tools for supporting group members in self-disclosure, processing group milestones, and integrating the work.

PROMISE OF GROUP THERAPY, THE: THE BEGINNING PHASES

By Vivian Nelson, Bill Roller

THIS THREE-PART SERIES presents scenes from a spontaneous, unscripted group that met for ten sessions with individuals willing to reveal themselves before a live camera.

The six-hour series introduces a unique way to conceptualize small group process. As the group evolves, the videos demonstrate the phases of group therapy development and emergent leadership roles articulated by Ariadne P. Beck, founder of the Chicago Group Development Research Team and preeminent researcher in the field of group dynamics.

Throughout the series provide concise (and, we hope, incisive) commentary on the group, so that the viewer learns how object relations can be applied to the group therapy setting. The work of other systems theorists is also introduced, providing a practical method to contain conflict and intense affect by the skillful use of subgroups.

Such basic concepts as projective identification, dissociation, part-object transference, and countertransference are clearly illustrated. In our commentary we try to elaborate the meaning of the group structure and demonstrate how it maybe used to facilitate the growth of each member.

HEALTH

FREE THE MIND

By Phie Ambo

Free the Mind profiles the pioneering work of renowned psychologist Richard Davidson, who, by studying the practices of Tibetan monks and others, found that it is possible to rewire the brain through meditation and mental training exercises.

Named one of Time Magazine's 100 most influential people in 2006, Dr. Davidson has dedicated himself to applying this hopeful discovery to improve the lives of people throughout the world. He founded the Center for Investigating Healthy Minds at the University of Wisconsin to study whether and how contemplative traditions change our brains and can help people overcome mental trauma and live happier lives.

Filed at the Center, Free the Mind follows three test subjects on an emotionally-charged journey through life-changing experiments overseen by Dr. Davidson that delve into the deepest recesses of the human mind.

Steve and Rich are American veterans who served in Iraq and Afghanistan and are tormented by painful wartime memories. Will is a five-year-old suffering from ADHD and severe anxiety whose parents are eager to find treatment options other than traditional medications. Can Dr. Davidson free these three from their troubled existences and help them lead happier lives?

The film explores the intersection between modern neuroscience and ancient contemplative practices, as well as deeper questions about the nature of consciousness and how it manifests in the brain and body. Animated segments vividly depict the effects on the brain of the techniques being employed, helping viewers understand the complex ideas involved.

Reviews

- "Free the Mind qualifies as a pioneering inquiry at the outermost boundaries of neuroscience. The film presents thoughtful, compassionate teachers as heroes while proving, yet again, that we've only just begun to unravel the mysteries of the human brain." - Seattle Times
- "Hopeful and inspiring...There's something healing about simply watching Free the Mind, Danish filmmaker Phie Ambo's gentle, compassionate documentary spotlighting the use of such drug-free options such as meditation and mindfulness to treat anxiety and trauma." - Los Angeles Times
- "Elegant...beautifully crafted...sheds light on the mysteries of the human mind. The film's style is a rapt combination of hushed intimacy and gliding elegance." - Variety

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: PROFIT AND LOSS

Directed by Christopher McLeod
 From Papua New Guinea to the tar sands of Alberta, Canada, native people fight the loss of land, water, and health to mining and oil industries.

From New Guinean rainforests to Canada's tar sands, PROFIT AND LOSS exposes industrial threats to native peoples' health, livelihood and cultural survival. In Papua New Guinea, a Chinese-government owned nickel mine has violently relocated villagers to a taboo sacred mountain, built a new pipeline and refinery on contested clan land, and is dumping mining waste into the sea. In Alberta, First Nations people suffer from rare cancers as their traditional hunting grounds are stripmined to unearth the world's third-largest oil reserve. Indigenous people tell their own stories and confront us with the ethical consequences of our culture of consumption.

HUMAN RIGHTS

AFTER TILLER

Directed by Martha Shane, Lane Wilson

Sheds a humanistic light on the heated abortion debate by going inside the lives of the last four doctors in America who openly provide third-trimester abortions.

Since the assassination of Dr. George Tiller in Kansas in May 2009, there are only four American doctors left who openly provide third-trimester abortions. AFTER TILLER paints a complex, compassionate portrait of these physicians--Dr. LeRoy Carhart, Dr. Warren Hern, Dr. Susan Robinson and Dr. Shelley Sella--who have become the new number-one targets of the anti-abortion movement, yet continue to risk their lives every day to do work that many believe is murder, but which they believe is profoundly important for their patients' lives.

The film weaves together revealing, in-depth interviews with the doctors with intimate verite scenes from their lives and inside their clinics, where they counsel and care for their anxious, vulnerable patients at an important crossroads in their lives. By sharing the moving stories of several of these patients, AFTER TILLER illuminates the experiences of women who seek late abortions and the reasons why they do so.

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: PILGRIMS AND TOURISTS

Directed by Christopher McLeod

In the Altai Republic of Russia and in Northern California, indigenous shamans resist massive government projects that threaten nature and culture.

In the Russian Republic of Altai, traditional native people create their own mountain parks, to rein in tourism and resist a gas pipeline that would cut through a World Heritage Site. In northern California, Winnemem Wintu girls grind herbs on a sacred medicine rock, as elders protest U.S. government plans to enlarge one of the West's biggest dams and forever submerge this touchstone of a tribe.

Winona LaDuke (Anishinaabe), Oren Lyons (Onondaga), Satish Kumar and Barry Lopez provide insights on a growing global indigenous movement for human rights and environmental protection.

INDIGENOUS PEOPLES

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: FIRE AND ICE

Directed by Christopher McLeod

From the Gamo Highlands of Ethiopia to the Andes of Peru, indigenous highland communities battle threats to their forests, farms, and faith.

From Ethiopia to Peru, indigenous customs protect biodiversity on sacred lands under pressure from religious conflicts and climate change. In the Gamo Highlands of Ethiopia, scientists confirm the benefits of traditional stewardship even as elders witness the decline of spiritual practices that have long protected trees, meadows and mountains. Tensions with evangelical Christians over a sacred meadow erupt into a riot. In the Peruvian Andes, the Q'eros, on a pilgrimage to a revered glacier, are driven from their ritual site by intolerant Catholics. Q'eros potato farmers face a more ominous foe: global warming is melting glaciers, their water source. Andes farmers, scientists and visiting Ethiopians struggle to adapt indigenous agriculture to the changing climate.

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: ISLANDS OF SANCTUARY

Directed by Christopher McLeod

Aboriginal Australians and Native Hawaiians reclaim land from the government and the military, and resist the erosion of culture and environment.

Native Hawaiians and Aboriginal Australians resist threats to their sacred places in a growing international movement to defend human rights and protect the environment. In Australia's Northern Territory, Aboriginal clans maintain Indigenous Protected Areas and resist the destructive effects of a mining boom. In Hawai'i, indigenous ecological and spiritual practices are used to restore the sacred island of Kaho'olawe after 50 years of military use as a bombing range.

Featuring Patrick Dodson (Yawuru), Emmett Aluli and Davianna McGregor (Hawai'i), Winona LaDuke (Anishinaabe), Oren Lyons (Onondaga), Satish Kumar and Barry Lopez.

CRY FREEDOM: MANDELA'S LEGACY

Nelson Mandela promised a South Africa based on freedom and equality. But as the country's former leader lies in hospital critically ill, the nation he fought to create is slowly disintegrating.

Reporter Matthew Carney goes to South Africa to try and understand the forces that threaten to pull the "rainbow nation" apart. What he finds after nearly 20 years of ANC in government is a tiny black elite have enriched themselves at the expense of a poor black majority. For the poor not much has changed... eighteen million people live on less than two dollars a day.

The Marikana mine massacre illuminates the massive contradictions and difficulties confronting the country. On the 16th August last year, 3,000 miners gathered to protest sub-standard wages. The police opened fire killing 34 people and wounding another 78. Some were killed in the initial attack, but it's alleged that many who died were actually shot in cold blood by police after the initial salvos were fired. Later, it was alleged the police planted weapons on the dead to justify their actions.

Carney talks to miners and protestors who survived the massacre, many of whom tell their stories for the first time. Some claim they were tortured and one miner tells how he was shot seven times by a black policeman. Marikana shocked the nation and evoked powerful memories of Apartheid massacres like Sharpeville and Soweto.

The program also looks at the Commission of Inquiry that has been set up to find out what really happened at Marikana. A year on from the tragedy the Inquiry is bogged down in legal argument and there is a serious threat that government funding will be cut for the miners' legal costs.

HACKED!

While debate rages over Australia's border security, there's growing evidence that the greatest threat to Australia's national security potentially comes from foreign computer hackers. Few in government or business will admit the full extent of the break-ins, with one expert calling it a "dirty little secret".

Reporter Andrew Fowler reveals that hackers, working from locations overseas, have targeted key Federal Government departments and major corporations in Australia. Their intention is to steal national security secrets and vital business information.

In one case, an Australian company that supplies secret communications equipment used by military across the globe had its computer network hacked. It appears the hackers accessed the system holding vital design information involving a military radio system. The break-in meant secure communications used by Australia's allies could be compromised.

A deafening silence surrounds this issue. Companies won't speak about the break-ins because they fear it will alarm clients and shareholders. Governments refuse to speak up because inevitably they will be asked, who is doing this? The answer is uncomfortable.

A number of people, including former government advisors in cyber security, claim the digital trail leads to China. Although it's unclear if the hackers are working for the Chinese Government, those same experts believe that any company doing significant business in China must assume it will be the target of corporate espionage.

IN GOOGLE WE TRUST

Every hour of every day, our digital interactions are being recorded and logged. We live in the age of 'big data', where seemingly mundane information about how we go about our lives has enormous value.

With the help of expert data trackers, we follow the information trail of an ordinary Australian family. We follow their data over a typical day, watching as it is surreptitiously recorded by government agencies and private organisations. Who gathers the information, what are they doing with it and what are your legal rights?

The internet has brought us conveniences once unimaginable. You can shop online, diagnose illnesses, and send 'selfies' whenever you want. But it isn't all one way traffic. Every time you use a search engine like Google, or access an 'app' on your smartphone, your activity is logged by companies around the world - many you've never even heard of.

That sometimes intensely personal data is either used or sold to make money.

Four Corners' investigation reveals that not only are we being tracked online by marketers but Australia's own government agencies are secretly monitoring our digital travels.

THREE MEN AND A BOAT

It's unusual for Landline in that this story is not about a farmer or a property but a boat, a wooden boat that changed the fortune of an entire town.

The Tacoma was Australia's first purpose-built tuna fishing vessel. It began catching bluefin off the coast of Port Lincoln in the early '50s and it transformed the fishing industry in this country forever.

POLITICS AND THE LAW

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE KIBBUTZIM?

The first Kibbutz was founded in Israel just over 100 years ago. A radical socialist experiment, it combined communal living and Zionist philosophy with the aim of "making the desert bloom".

Soon there were dozens, and training farms were set up in countries like Australia, to prepare young people for the physical hardship of kibbutz life where - in exchange for outdoor manual labour - volunteers were provided with food, shelter, education and medical care. In the late 60s and 70s many young Australians, Jewish and non-Jewish, went to Israel to join a Kibbutz. Why did they go? How has the experience shaped their lives? And, do Kibbutzim still operate?

PSYCHOLOGY

FREE THE MIND

By Phie Ambo

Free the Mind profiles the pioneering work of renowned psychologist Richard Davidson, who, by studying the practices of Tibetan monks and others, found that it is possible to rewire the brain through meditation and mental training exercises.

Named one of Time Magazine's 100 most influential people in 2006, Dr. Davidson has dedicated himself to applying this hopeful discovery to improve the lives of people throughout the world. He founded the Center for Investigating Healthy Minds at the University of Wisconsin to study whether and how contemplative traditions change our brains and can help people overcome mental trauma and live happier lives.

Filmed at the Center, Free the Mind follows three test subjects on an emotionally-charged journey through life-changing experiments overseen by Dr. Davidson that delve into the deepest recesses of the human mind.

Steve and Rich are American veterans who served in Iraq and Afghanistan and are tormented by painful wartime memories. Will is a five-year-old suffering from ADHD and severe anxiety whose parents are eager to find treatment options other than traditional medications. Can Dr. Davidson free these three from their troubled existences and help them lead happier lives?

The film explores the intersection between modern neuroscience and ancient contemplative practices, as well as deeper questions about the nature of consciousness and how it manifests in the brain and body. Animated segments vividly depict the effects on the brain of the techniques being employed, helping viewers understand the complex ideas involved.

Reviews

- "Free the Mind qualifies as a pioneering inquiry at the outermost boundaries of neuroscience. The film presents thoughtful, compassionate teachers as heroes while proving, yet again, that we've only just begun to unravel the mysteries of the human brain." - Seattle Times

- "Hopeful and inspiring...There's something healing about simply watching Free the Mind, Danish filmmaker Phie Ambo's gentle, compassionate documentary spotlighting the use of such drug-free options such as meditation and mindfulness to treat anxiety and trauma." - Los Angeles Times
- "Elegant...beautifully crafted...sheds light on the mysteries of the human mind. The film's style is a rapt combination of hushed intimacy and gliding elegance." - Variety

RACE AND ETHNIC STUDIES

RELEASED

By Philip Messina

Two-thirds of convicts released from prison return behind bars within three years. RELEASED presents the hopeful stories of four parolees who prove that the tide of recidivism can be reversed, if former prisoners are given the support they need to reenter society.

The four -- Vilma Ortiz Donovan, Kenneth Harrigan, Casimiro Torres and Angel Ramos -- spent over 70 years in prison combined. Released with no homes to go to or jobs for support, they ended up in a prisoner reentry facility in New York City known as "The Castle", run by former convicts and established by The Fortune Society. With the help of The Castle, all four overcame their traumatic personal histories and chronic criminal behavior to become exemplary citizens.

As part of their rehabilitation, they worked developing their life stories into a spoken word play that ran Off-Broadway for 14 months. In the play, each of them bares their souls in a painfully honest retelling of their personal stories -- from childhood and their crimes, to life in prison and the forces that helped them change. The film features scenes from the play being presented to prisoners and to a theater audience, along with other filmed scenes.

All four speak about how what ought to be the final redemptive chapter -- release from prison -- is often the hardest challenge of all. Dropped back into society with little or no preparation and support virtually insures a high failure rate. Having spent 30 years in prison, Angel Ramos asks: "How do I live like a normal human being when I have no idea what normal is?"

Their life-affirming stories of change provide an important model for reducing the rate of repeat offenders.

Reviews

- "Earnest, inspirational. Performing in front of two audiences, one in a theater, the other in a prison, all four speak of the forces that made them want to change." - New York Times
- "Compelling, heartfelt ... serves as an inspiration for current convicts and as a cautionary tale." - NYC Movie Guru
- "Released is a powerful look at the personal journey into, through and out of the criminal justice system. These narratives bring us face to face with the painful experiences of four individuals who despite the hardest of challenges found strength and resilience within themselves in the face of hopelessness. ## RECOGNIZING & RESOLVING ETHICAL DILEMMAS

INTEGRITY: GOOD PEOPLE, BAD CHOICES & LIFE LESSONS FROM THE WHITE HOUSE

With Egil "Bud" Krogh

In 1971, Egil 'Bud' Krogh, a 31-year-old White House deputy counsel, was tasked with finding and stopping security leaks and became head of the Special Investigations Unit. Krogh and associates familiarly became known as the 'White House Plumbers.'

Of the various White House-based conspirators, Krogh alone pled guilty and refused to trade inside information for a reduced sentence. He was disbarred and went to prison. In 1980, Krogh successfully petitioned to be readmitted to the bar and has been in practice since. In Integrity: Good People, Bad Choices and Life Lessons from the White House, Krogh tells his story from rising young presidential counsel, to his indictment and prison sentence, to redemption and the power of choosing to do what is right.

RELIGION AND SPIRITUALITY

FASHION AND FAITH: MUSLIM STYLE

A new breed of fashion designers is turning heads on the Australian catwalk catering to Muslim women eager for cutting edge designs better suited to our lifestyle and climate.

For women in particular, dress is an integral part of Muslim life: it embodies a moral and behavioural code dating back to Islam's earliest days. Dress-codes vary from country to culture, but modesty remains the cornerstone. Now Australian Muslim designers, weary of black synthetic imports, are reinterpreting modest fashion with their own stylish, versatile and distinctive garments specifically tailored for Australia's lifestyle and climate. Compass follows several upcoming designers preparing for Ramadan, the busiest time on the Muslim calendar.

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE CHARISMATICS?

Charismatics believe through God they can heal the sick, receive signs and speak directly to God in a special language. 40 years ago a radical new religious movement erupted in Australia and one of its flag-bearers was Harry Westcott, a Methodist preacher from Canberra, who had an experience of God so powerful, it transformed him and his style of ministry.

Charismatic renewal attracted tens of thousands of Christians, giving them a new and deeper sense of God, and transformed parts of the Anglican, Catholic and Protestant churches. But within 20 years it was over... So what was the Charismatic Movement? Why did it burst onto our scene when it did? And, whatever happened to Harry Westcott?

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE ORANGE PEOPLE?

In the '70s and '80s followers of "sex-guru" Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh stood out in Australia with their bright orange clothes and unusual names. Combining eastern mysticism and western capitalism, the Bhagwan urged devotees to explore sex as a path to enlightenment, and many devotees gave up everything to join his ashram in India, then later in America.

But when the controversial movement imploded in a cloud of corruption and murder allegations, almost overnight the Orange people seemed to disappear. Who were the 'Orange People'? What persuaded people to join? And, are they still around?

REPRODUCTIVE RIGHTS

AFTER TILLER

Directed by Martha Shane, Lane Wilson

Sheds a humanistic light on the heated abortion debate by going inside the lives of the last four doctors in America who openly provide third-trimester abortions.

Since the assassination of Dr. George

Tiller in Kansas in May 2009, there are only four American doctors left who openly provide third-trimester abortions. AFTER TILLER paints a complex, compassionate portrait of these physicians--Dr. LeRoy Carhart, Dr. Warren Hern, Dr. Susan Robinson and Dr. Shelley Sella--who have become the new number-one targets of the anti-abortion movement, yet continue to risk their lives every day to do work that many believe is murder, but which they believe is profoundly important for their patients' lives.

The film weaves together revealing, in-depth interviews with the doctors with intimate verite scenes from their lives and inside their clinics, where they counsel and care for their anxious, vulnerable patients at an important crossroads in their lives. By sharing the moving stories of several of these patients, AFTER TILLER illuminates the experiences of women who seek late abortions and the reasons why they do so.

GAS LEAK!

The coal seam gas industry promotes itself as a cleaner carbon-fuel alternative; but how do we know this is true? Until now much of the information used to back this claim has come from the industry itself.

The problem is this "cleaner-greener" claim doesn't always square with experience on the ground. Next on Four Corners reporter Matthew Carney talks to farmers who've seen rivers bubble with methane, their bore water polluted with chemicals, while the reserves of ground water on their property have dropped alarmingly.

He also looks at the latest research that suggests the coal seam gas industry might be a much bigger greenhouse gas emitter than previously thought.

But why weren't these problems picked up in the development approval process? The answer is simple: according to one insider, the approval process is significantly flawed. Four Corners reveals what really happened when two major companies applied to develop thousands of square kilometres of southern Queensland for coal seam gas. Using hundreds of pages of confidential documents, the program reveals that the companies didn't supply enough basic information for an informed decision to be made about environmental impacts. Despite this, various government agencies permitted the developments to go ahead, allowing the companies to submit key information at a later date. A decision which shocked some who were involved:

This same insider claims pressure was applied to the bureaucracy to fast track approval for coal seam gas development. This allegation would deeply concern many farmers who have seen their land used for coal seam gas sites and raises significant concerns about the future expansion of the industry across Australia.

SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

CRACKING THE CODE

The Damiani family's story has been described as a breathtaking example of how medicine can be transformed by the determination of ordinary people.

Four years ago, Stephen and Sally Damiani's baby son Massimo succumbed to a mystery disease. In the space of a few weeks, the toddler lost the ability to eat and crawl. The prognosis was bleak and the cause mystifying.

Stephen Damiani, who has a background in construction economics and risk management, teamed up with a young geneticist to map the family's genome in an attempt to discover the cause of his son's illness.

In the process, his seemingly impossible quest for answers has made a discovery that's astonished the international medical community and has implications for us all.

44 DAZE

The fatal shooting of Trayvon Martin by George Zimmerman occurred on February 26, 2012 in the community of Sanford, Florida. The incident caused huge waves throughout the world and raised many questions about the approach that was taken by the city officials of Sanford while investigating the incident. This documentary focuses on the 44 days directly after the shooting and the mounting pressure from around the nation that finally led to the arrest and charging of Zimmerman. The issues of social justice and judicial and municipal efficiency that were raised during this period are examined through in-depth interviews with Sanford city council and law enforcement officials.

BELLS OF ST LEONARDS

Compass tells the story of six bells rescued from Wales to be installed in a Sydney church in time for its centenary celebrations.

St. Leonard's Catholic Church in Naremburn turns 100 this year and, for the first time in its busy history, bells will be ringing in the mass. Parishioners are eagerly awaiting the arrival of six refurbished bells (originally cast in 1866) on their way by container ship from Wales. But some local residents, concerned about the noise they will make, have yet to be convinced of their communal merit. Meantime a group of parishioners are being trained in the genteel art of bellringing, a first for this congregation. Compass follows the journey in time for St Leonards' 100th anniversary celebrations.

CRY FREEDOM: MANDELA'S LEGACY

Nelson Mandela promised a South Africa based on freedom and equality. But as the country's former leader lies in hospital critically ill, the nation he fought to create is slowly disintegrating.

Reporter Matthew Carney goes to South Africa to try and understand the forces that threaten to pull the "rainbow nation" apart. What he finds after nearly 20 years of ANC in government is a tiny black elite have enriched themselves at the expense of a poor black majority. For the poor not much has changed... eighteen million people live on less than two dollars a day.

The Marikana mine massacre illuminates the massive contradictions and difficulties confronting the country. On the 16th August last year, 3,000 miners gathered to protest sub-standard wages. The police opened fire killing 34 people and wounding another 78. Some were killed in the initial attack, but it's alleged that many who died were actually shot in cold blood by police after the initial salvos were fired. Later, it was alleged the police planted weapons on the dead to justify their actions.

Carney talks to miners and protestors who survived the massacre, many of whom tell their stories for the first time. Some claim they were tortured and one miner tells how he was shot seven times by a black policeman. Marikana shocked the nation and evoked powerful memories of Apartheid massacres like Sharpeville and Soweto.

The program also looks at the Commission of Inquiry that has been set up to find out what really happened at Marikana. A year on from the tragedy the Inquiry is bogged down in legal argument and there is a serious threat that government funding will be cut for the miners' legal costs.

FASHION VICTIMS

Australians love a bargain, but what's the real cost of cheap clothes from the sweat shops in Bangladesh? In 2013 more than a thousand people were killed when an eight storey building collapsed in the heart of Bangladesh's capital, Dhaka.

The collapse of Rana Plaza turned the world's attention to the shocking conditions workers in the country's clothing industry are forced to endure. In recent years, Australian companies have flooded into Bangladesh to take advantage of lax labour laws and the lowest wages in the world, paid to the predominantly young, female workers in the factories.

Reporter Sarah Ferguson sets out to find where the clothes we see in our major retail outlets are made. What efforts do Australian companies make to ensure the factories are safe and their workers earn a living wage? Australian retailers blocked our enquiries at every turn, refusing access to factories wherever we went. Working backwards from some of our best known retail outlets, Four Corners goes factory to factory showing workers and union organisers Australian labels until the factories are found. There the workers describe a miserable existence, long hours, pitiful pay and abuse if deadlines aren't met. In some of the worst cases there is even violence and threats of jail.

HACKED!

While debate rages over Australia's border security, there's growing evidence that the greatest threat to Australia's national security potentially comes from foreign computer hackers. Few in government or business will admit the full extent of the break-ins, with one expert calling it a "dirty little secret".

Reporter Andrew Fowler reveals that hackers, working from locations overseas, have targeted key Federal Government departments and major corporations in Australia. Their intention is to steal national security secrets and vital business information.

In one case, an Australian company that supplies secret communications equipment used by military across the globe had its computer network hacked. It appears the hackers accessed the system holding vital design information involving a military radio system. The break-in meant secure communications used by Australia's allies could be compromised.

A deafening silence surrounds this issue. Companies won't speak about the break-ins because they fear it will alarm clients and shareholders. Governments refuse to speak up because inevitably they will be asked, who is doing this? The answer is uncomfortable.

A number of people, including former government advisors in cyber security, claim the digital trail leads to China. Although it's unclear if the hackers are working for the Chinese Government, those same experts believe that any company doing significant business in China must assume it will be the target of corporate espionage.

IN GOOGLE WE TRUST

Every hour of every day, our digital interactions are being recorded and logged. We live in the age of 'big data', where seemingly mundane information about how we go about our lives has enormous value.

With the help of expert data trackers, we follow the information trail of an ordinary Australian family. We follow their data over a typical day, watching as it is surreptitiously recorded by government agencies and private organisations. Who gathers the information, what are they doing with it and what are your legal rights?

The internet has brought us conveniences once unimaginable. You can shop online, diagnose illnesses, and send 'selfies' whenever you want. But it isn't all one way traffic. Every time you use a search engine like Google, or access an 'app' on your smartphone, your activity is logged by companies around the world - many you've never even heard of.

That sometimes intensely personal data is either used or sold to make money.

Four Corners' investigation reveals that not only are we being tracked online by marketers but Australia's own government agencies are secretly monitoring our digital travels.

ISLAM OUTBACK

Compass sets off deep into the Australian desert to join a camel trek for Muslims.

It's a spiritual safari for Australian Muslims, many of whom have never being out of the city before. Participants learn how to camp on the desert sands, wash without water and how to tell prayer times by the sun and stars. Learning how to bond with your camel is all part of this spiritual adventure too! Sydney-based Imam Afroz Ali organises these treks every few years in South Australia's remote Flinders Ranges. It's a transformative experience for all including the two non-Muslim camel guides who know little about Islam when start out.

ON THE BRINK

Australia's economy - and unemployment rate - might be the envy of countries around the world, but it doesn't mean poverty and unemployment have been eradicated.

Welfare agencies say that many individuals and families are just one or two pay cheques away from financial disaster and homelessness. Worse still, with the mining boom coming off the boil, experts predict more people will find themselves out of work.

Reporter Geoff Thompson finds out what it's like to lose your job, your home and find yourself dependent on welfare. What he discovers is sobering. Ironically, while economic growth is generally good news, it's also pushed up the cost of living, making life for the unemployed even tougher. A Senate Inquiry report released this month concluded the current unemployment benefit is set too low. For many of the people Four Corners spoke to, accommodation absorbs most of their money, even with additional payments for rent assistance. Running a car and eating nutritious meals becomes close to an impossible dream. The result? Their world contracts and they can find themselves cut off from society.

Spending time with private charitable organisations, Four Corners profiles five people across Australia who are struggling to survive. One of them is John. A few months ago he lost his job. He became ill and was forced into hospital. Now he searches for work and barely survives on the Newstart allowance. John lives on one meal a day of two minute noodles, and his only chance for a good meal is to line up at a food kitchen.

Like so many people, John doesn't want sympathy, he simply wants support that allows him to survive while he looks for work - and he's not an isolated case. Those on the frontline of welfare delivery warn that, based on the figures they are seeing, the problems associated with unemployment will increase in the near future.

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE CHARISMATICS?

Charismatics believe through God they can heal the sick, receive signs and speak directly to God in a special language. 40 years ago a radical new religious movement erupted in Australia and one of its flag-bearers was Harry Westcott, a Methodist preacher from Canberra, who had an experience of God so powerful, it transformed him and his style of ministry.

Charismatic renewal attracted tens of thousands of Christians, giving them a new and deeper sense of God, and transformed parts of the Anglican, Catholic and Protestant churches. But within 20 years it was over... So what was the Charismatic Movement? Why did it burst onto our scene when it did? And, whatever happened to Harry Westcott?

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE KIBBUTZIM?

The first Kibbutz was founded in Israel just over 100 years ago. A radical socialist experiment, it combined communal living and Zionist philosophy with the aim of "making the desert bloom".

Soon there were dozens, and training farms were set up in countries like Australia, to prepare young people for the physical hardship of kibbutz life where - in exchange for outdoor manual labour - volunteers were provided with food, shelter, education and medical care. In the late 60s and 70s many young Australians, Jewish and non-Jewish, went to Israel to join a Kibbutz. Why did they go? How has the experience shaped their lives? And, do Kibbutzim still operate?

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE ORANGE PEOPLE?

In the '70s and '80s followers of "sex-guru" Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh stood out in Australia with their bright orange clothes and unusual names. Combining eastern mysticism and western capitalism, the Bhagwan urged devotees to explore sex as a path to enlightenment, and many devotees gave up everything to join his ashram in India, then later in America.

But when the controversial movement imploded in a cloud of corruption and murder allegations, almost overnight the Orange people seemed to disappear. Who were the 'Orange People'? What persuaded people to join? And, are they still around?

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: FIRE AND ICE

Directed by Christopher McLeod

From the Gamo Highlands of Ethiopia to the Andes of Peru, indigenous highland communities battle threats to their forests, farms, and faith.

From Ethiopia to Peru, indigenous customs protect biodiversity on sacred lands under pressure from religious conflicts and climate change. In the Gamo Highlands of Ethiopia, scientists confirm the benefits of traditional stewardship even as elders witness the decline of spiritual practices that have long protected trees, meadows and mountains. Tensions with evangelical Christians over a sacred meadow erupt into a riot. In the Peruvian Andes, the Q'eros, on a pilgrimage to a revered glacier, are driven from their ritual site by intolerant Catholics. Q'eros potato farmers face a more ominous foe: global warming is melting glaciers, their water source. Andes farmers, scientists and visiting Ethiopians struggle to adapt indigenous agriculture to the changing climate.

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: ISLANDS OF SANCTUARY

Directed by Christopher McLeod

Aboriginal Australians and Native Hawaiians reclaim land from the government and the military, and resist the erosion of culture and environment.

Native Hawaiians and Aboriginal Australians resist threats to their sacred places in a growing international movement to defend human rights and protect the environment. In Australia's Northern Territory, Aboriginal clans maintain Indigenous Protected Areas and resist the destructive effects of a mining boom. In Hawai'i, indigenous ecological and spiritual practices are used to restore the sacred island of Kaho'olawe after 50 years of military use as a bombing range.

Featuring Patrick Dodson (Yawuru), Emmett Aluli and Davianna McGregor (Hawai'i), Winona LaDuke (Anishinaabe), Oren Lyons (Onondaga), Satish Kumar and Barry Lopez.

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: PILGRIMS AND TOURISTS

Directed by Christopher McLeod

In the Altai Republic of Russia and in Northern California, indigenous shamans resist massive government projects that threaten nature and culture.

In the Russian Republic of Altai, traditional native people create their own mountain parks, to rein in tourism and resist a gas pipeline that would cut through a World Heritage Site. In northern California, Winnemem Wintu girls grind herbs on a sacred medicine rock, as elders protest U.S. government plans to enlarge one of the West's biggest dams and forever submerge this touchstone of a tribe.

Winona LaDuke (Anishinaabe), Oren Lyons (Onondaga), Satish Kumar and Barry Lopez provide insights on a growing global indigenous movement for human rights and environmental protection.

STANDING ON SACRED GROUND: PROFIT AND LOSS

Directed by Christopher McLeod

From Papua New Guinea to the tar sands of Alberta, Canada, native people fight the loss of land, water, and health to mining and oil industries.

From New Guinean rainforests to Canada's tar sands, PROFIT AND LOSS exposes industrial threats to native peoples' health, livelihood and cultural survival. In Papua New Guinea, a Chinese-government owned nickel mine has violently relocated villagers to a taboo sacred mountain, built a new pipeline and refinery on contested clan land, and is dumping mining waste into the sea. In Alberta, First Nations people suffer from rare cancers as their traditional hunting grounds are stripmined to unearth the world's third-largest oil reserve. Indigenous people tell their own stories-and confront us with the ethical consequences of our culture of consumption.

FASHION AND FAITH: MUSLIM STYLE

A new breed of fashion designers is turning heads on the Australian catwalk catering to Muslim women eager for cutting edge designs better suited to our lifestyle and climate.

For women in particular, dress is an integral part of Muslim life: it embodies a moral and behavioural code dating back to Islam's earliest days. Dress-codes vary from country to country, but modesty remains the cornerstone. Now Australian Muslim designers, weary of black synthetic imports, are reinterpreting modest fashion with their own stylish, versatile and distinctive garments specifically tailored for Australia's lifestyle and climate. Compass follows several upcoming designers preparing for Ramadan, the busiest time on the Muslim calendar.

WORKSITE HEALTH PROMOTION

TRENDS AND OPPORTUNITIES IN WORKSITE HEALTH PROMOTION

By Charlie Estey, Nico Pronk

The worksite health and wellness market has grown exponentially over the past five years. In fact, over 80% of employers currently sponsor health and fitness programs, a trend which is expected to continue and become even more pronounced. Trends and Opportunities in Worksite Health Promotion details key strategies and practical tips to help health/fitness professionals leverage their skills at the worksite. The DVD also explains how these professionals can turn their knowledge of health, fitness, and injury prevention programming into a marketable business that can impact both employees and their family members.

Among the topics covered:

- What is driving change?
- Shorter lives, poorer health
- Some key trends—complexity
- Some key trends—big data
- Some key trends—connecting company and community
- So what does this mean for me?
- Worksite health/fitness opportunities
- Opportunities in Worksite health promotion
- Define your target segment
- Why an exercise prescription?
- Preparing yourself for the future
